Petersbourg, December 20.

THE two first Regiments of Guards were drawn up the 10th Instant before the Winter Palace, the Prince of Brunswick Generalissimo at their Head, and the young Czar and the great Dutchess appearing at two different Windows; when the Secretary of the Cabinet Jacobleff, the Great Dutchess's private Secretary, the Prince of Brunswick's Adjutant, and five Officers belonging to the said two Regiments, who had all been confined in the Cittadel, and knoutted there, during the late Regency, were brought out, and a Proclamation was read restoring them to their Honours, and forbidding, under severe Penalties, any Body ever to reproach them with that Confinement and Punishment. They were afterwards each of them promoted according to their respective Ranks and Professions. The 18th was the Princess Elizabeth's Birth-Day; the great Dutchess was with her the Evening before, (according to the Custom of this Country) to wish her Joy, and made her a Present of a Pair of Bracelets of four Rounds of Pearls, each with Diamond Clasps; the young Czar sent her a Gold Snuff Box, with the Russian Spread Eagle set with Diamonds, and his Crest in the Middle; and also an Order on the Salt Office for 40,000 Roubles, which is about 9000 l. Sterling. The Corpse of the late Czarina, after having lain in State in her own Apartment ever since her Death, was removed this Week into the great Hall of the Summer Palace, where it is exposed under a Canopy, with a Crown of Diamonds on the Head, and a great many Jewels on the Breast, the four Crowns of Russia, Casan, Astracan, and Siberia, the Globe and Scepter, the four Orders of St. Andrew, Alexander, Catherina, and the white Eagle, being ranged on ten Stools; and will be interred on Tuesday next, if no sudden Thaw interrupts the present Frost.
